A CRIMINAL LETTER.

If the Dudley letter advising a campaign of corruption in Indiana is genuine, it ought to insure the defeat of a party which seeks to succeed only by an infamous crime. The offense is the more scandalous inasmuch as Col. Duplier's Committee is preaching about honesty and demanding protection for the

In 1880 the country was shocked by the spectacle of the Vice-President-elect publiely boasting that Indiana had been carried by the use of "soap," the slang term for money. It was notorious that the was true, and the present canfor Vice-President was the that year raised and sent out the enormous corruption fund. Will the people quietly suffer this infamy to be repeated? Can the will of the nation be again subverted through the criminal use of money to purchase the vote of a whole State? If the Dunley letter is genuine, ought not its writer to be indicted and punished?

HOW TO SETTLE THE TROUBLE

The British Government has an (opportu nity to do a handsome thing just now, and one which may go far towards atoning for the stupid action of its representative, Lord SACRVILLE, of which it ought to feel heartily

Mr. MICHAEL HERBERT, a young Englishman of good family, respectable abilities and pleasing manners, is at present Second Secretary of the British Legation at Washington. In the absence of the First Secretary he will discharge the duties of the Embassy while the office suddenly vacated by Lord SACKVILLE remains unfilled. Mr. HERRERT is about to marry an American girl, the daughter of a wealthy New York banker. It will be a graceful and courteous act for the British Government to appoint Mr. HERBERT, who is a younger brother of LOT PEMBEORE, to Lord SACRVILLE'S VACANT

By his fortunate match, Mr. HERBERT will connect himself by marriage with the Asrons and Gorlers, and obtain an entrée into society. He will make a good Minister, and being more sensible than SACKVILLE, will not repeat any of his blunders. Besides, it will be a compliment to place an American bride at the head of the Embassy.

Although we were obliged to show Lord SACRVILLE the door and accelerate his descent from the stoop, we bear no ill feeling towards England, and we should appreciate the promotion of Mr. HERBERT as a fitting atonement for SACRVILLE's stupidity and im-

The express messenger who was on the Mexican Central Railroad last Tuesday when the train was raided by robbers, deserves a handsome recognition. He did not wait to thieves, who were three one, but quietly slipped from car and escaped into the one, darkness, carrying with him the keys. The baffled robbers had no means of opening the safe, which was their object, and had to content themselves with a trifling booty.

Lots of Ways to Spend Your Money and Your Time

IF YOU WERE A MILLIONAIRE.

Some Very Interesting and Some Very Amusing Suggestions Made.

Would Spend It for Tax Reform. I would use the million to wipe out all taxation and to substitute one single tax on land values. C. Thecar.

If I had $1,000,000 I would spend $75,00 to help elect Grover Cleveland President After he is elected I would invest in business. C. F. P.

Another Wild Republican.

To the Editor of The Evening World.

If I was a millionaire I would travel in Europe. I would bet on Harrison and Mor-

I would get a "sub" comp. at once, get married and travel for a while. Then, after my return, I would try to help the poor in a

For the Suppression of Military Titles.

I would offer all that million as a ward for the suppression of the absurd custom of giving military titles to people who are not on any grounds whatsoever entitled to them.

He Never Would Be Missed.

To the Editor of The Evening World:

I would take the first steamer to England, shake the dust off my feet before I went on board and then return thanks to the Almighty for having delivered me from this "blood country." No Republic for me. An Englishman.

A " High Liver."

If I were a millionaire I would go to theatres, to ball games, and other places where there is lots of music. I would buy a rail-road, and have an extra locomotive and pal-ace car built for myself, all the while living high. GEO. A. KREIN.

o the Editor of The Evening World:
If I had $1,000,000 I would give it to Cleveland and his family for the necessities of life after his defeat in November next. "Hur-rah for Tippecanoe."

Here's a "Rank" Republican.

MICHAEL SALSBURY, 221 East Fifty-second street.

A Cage for Husbands.

I would take part of the million to build a large house in cage form for selfish husbands, who take all their time and every-thing else they can take for their own bene-fit. I would also spend part of it for neglected wives. S. E. T.

Would Stop Steambout Whistles To the Editor of The Evening World:

Were I only a quarter-millionaire I would order a rubber plug to be stuffed down the throttle of every steamboat whistle as now used without a five-minute rest every twenty-four hours during the year.

ARTHUR A. STEWARD. a suffering Brooklynite.

A Very Sensible View.

To the Editor of The Evening World:

If I were a millionaire, and assuming that my capital were safels invested, I would not at my death donate so many thousands to charitable organizations, but would enjoy the good of doing good in life, and not look for salvation through my donation at death for my misdeeds of this life. J. GREEN.

Riches Are Not All.

To the Editor of The Evening World:

If rich men knew how little they were worshipped and admired except on account of their money, then there would doubtless be less anxiety to become rich. Of all the mean men the meanest are the rich men who think and care for no one but self.

H. C. Dexten, 40 Broad street.

$50,000 for the Early-Closing Movement. to the Editor of The Evening World

I would give $50,000 to this city to estab lish a free circulating library, and I would also use $50,000 more in organizing an early-closing association, to compel some mean employers of this city to close their stores at 8 o'clock every evening. H. F. W. . Hoboken, N. J.

Would Remember His Priends to the Editor of The Evening World: I would first give a nice little slice of the million to each of several people who have treated me very kindly out of pure friend ship. Then I would like to travel leisurely throughout this country for pleasure, but with a heart and purse always open to assist deserving people who have met with misfortune.

LITTLE BRIDGET RESTORED BY MEANS OF "THE EVENING WORLD'S" STORY.

She Got Lost on Her Way Home from St Alphonaus's School and Took Refuge with a Woman, Who Turned Her Out Late at Night-Kind Mrs. Burns Had

"Oh, sir," exclaimed Mrs. Patrick Tuberty. of 340 Spring street, to a reporter this morn. ing, as she ran her arm about the waist of her eleven-year-old daughter and hugged her to her, "THE EVENING WORLD has been so kind and has done so much for me!"

Tears were in her eyes and she caressed the shorn locks of little Bridget's head as she continued: "No sooner had THE EVENING WORLD told the story of how my little girl was kept from me than the woman who had kept her, Mrs. Patrick Magee, of Cherry street, turned her out. She knew that she would be found out. Then Bridget was taken in by Mrs. Burns, 9 Pelham street.

"Mrs. Burns is a kind old lady, and she read the story in THE EVENING WORLD and read the story in THE EVENING WORLD and sent word to me.

"My brother, Andrew Kelly, went with me to Mrs Burns's. We did not know what kind of a woman she was and we took a policeman with us. We went to Mrs. Magee's, too, but she would not tell us why she kept Bridget."

too, but she would not tell us why she kept Bridget."

Little Bridget was shy to-day. She said, diffidently, that she lost her way when coming home from St. Albhonsus's School by way of a new route, and then she applied for work. Mrs. Magee said she would give her five cents a day to mind her baby. She never gave it, though. She had three children.

It was nearly 9 o'clock last night when, without any warning, Mrs. Magee told Bridget to "clear out" or she would have her arrested. Then Bridget found shelter with good Mrs. Burns.

Bridget's clothing and person were in a filthy condition, and she had on a tattered and very dirty chemise, which had once been worn by a grown person. Her black hair had been cropped all around, and her head looked like that of a Fiji Islander.

During its thirteen months of existence it

During its thirteen months of existence it has been the pleasurable duty of The Even-na World to ferret out several lost children, and it has been the means of restoring many lost children, to their parents, while in one case it was an aged and decrepit wanderer who was found by The Evening World.

Mrs. Tuberty was profuse in her praise of the people's paper for finding her little girl, and Bridget said she was thankful to get home and would never wander away again.

NEWS OF THE SPORTS.

lack McAuiffe's Condition a Credit to His Trainer.

Jack McAuliffe never looked better than when he appeared in the Police Gazette office yesterday to arrange a match with Hyams, A man in fighting condition is rather too thin A man in fighting condition is rather too thin to claim attention as a fine physical specimen, unless stripped; but a well-built pugilist, a few weeks after a victorious battle, will always attract more than passing notice. McAuliffe's appearance yesterday did Dooney Harris, his trainer, even more credit than his good looks in the ring. It proved how fundamentally good the conditioning had been.

Johnny Fallon, the Brooklyn heavy-weight, who is to meet Tom Lees, the Australian, in December, is to box Dominick McCaffrey, six rounds in East New York Nov. 18.

Patrick Sutton, the Waterbury middle-weight, who defeated Burns, of New Haven, last May after one of the most terrific battles ever witnessed, will probably come to New York in a few weeks. He will perfect his knowledge of the science, do some gymnasium and track work, then challenge any of the middle-weights, barring only Jack Dempsey.

Entries for the first annual fall games of Company I, Twenty-third Regiment, to be held Nov. 24 at the armory, in Brooklyn, close on the 17th mst., with Mr. F. E. Steele, P. O. box 1151, New York City.

McAuliffe telegraphed the writer of this column late last night that Dick Roche, his backer, is agreeable to all Myers's terms, but would prefer the battle to take place East. It is to be hoped an agreement will be quickly reached for another great battle for the light-weight championship. All who enjoy a good cross-country run should go with the Spartan Harriers on Tuesday next, when they will hold their annual Election Day chase from Whalan's Hotel, Orange. The train will leave at 9.30 A. M. from Barclay street. The hares will be W. E. Knox, L. R. Sharp and W. L. Freudenstein. E. F. Haubold will act as master, assisted by T. L. Cooke and A. P. Folk, the whire.

The tie game of football between the New York Athletic Club and Orange Athletic Club will be played at the Orange Athletic Club grounds at Roseville, N. J. Nov. 6, at 2.30 r. M. Trains leave New York for Rose-ville at 1.30 on Morris and Essex branch of the D., L. and W. RR.

Bicyclists will be interested in this, from The Wheel: "Miss Pauline Hall, of the 'Erminie' Company, says that she has never been so well as since she learned to ride. The exercise keeps her flesh hard and good in color, and improve her lung power wonderfully. Her first ride on the road was fifteen miles long, and her longest thirty miles. On the road she wears a soft woollen fabric of slate color. The skirt is cut fairly full, ankle high in length, and square. The only trimming is narrow silver braid at the bottom of the skirt and on the bodice."

chief handy, asked my friend for hers.

"When they were crossing the ferry my friend suddenly found that she had lost her engagement ring, which was in her pocket when she left home. As the ring was in the same pocket with the handkerchief she knew she must have pulled it out and dropped it at the time she loaned that article.

"You can doubtless imagine how she feels over the loss," continued Mr. Kendall.

"The ring was a beautiful white stone and worth about $100. Perhaps we may find it yet through your paper."

Nervous Debility.

You suffer from nervous debility, and go about weak, tired, nervous and wretched-depressed in mind and exhausted in body. Do you not know that thousands become pros-trated, paralyzed or insane by neglecting these symptoms? And how foolish it is to neglect your health when you know that Dr. Greene's Nervura Nerve Tonic, which is acknowledged the greatest medical discovery of the cen-tury, will perfectly and completely cure you, and at a triffing cost. You can get it at any drug store for $1.00 per bottle, and as it is guaranteed purely vegetable and harmless, you should not hesitate an instant to secure this wonderfu invigorator and restorative.
